Formal Ceremony Starts New Pollak Mill

U.S. PLANE MISSING IN EUROPEAN FLIGHT

By The United Press

FRANKFURT, Nov 29 — The United States Air Force announced today that an Army C-47 carrying 17 passengers and four crewmen was missing on a flight from Italy, and might be down somewhere in Germany.

American planes were shuttling through the skies along the route of the missing transport in search of it or some signs of its fate.

The C-47 left Pisa, Italy, at 12 37 p m (6 37 a m EST) yesterday. It was due at the main air base outside Frankfurt at 5 30 p m.

A radioman at Munich heard a plane trying urgently to make contact with the Rhein-Main field, one of the busiest air bases in Europe.

Bad weather impeded the search. Fog and mist hung over much of the area in which the plane might have gone down. One airman who went out from Munich said the search was like—"looking for a needle in a steaming haystack."

Identification of those aboard the plane was withheld for the time being.

Taft Backs European Winter Aid, Opposes Long Range Plan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 29—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) threw his support today behind the $597,000,000 winter aid bill for western Europe but served notice that he is against any long range attempt at underwriting the world's deficits with dollars.

He told a reporter the winter aid bill, limited to food fuel and fertilizer for France, Italy and Austria is all right because it will help those countries go to work. He predicted the senate will approve the measure next week after its Saturday-Sunday recess.

But the Ohioan, who is chairman of the senate G O P policy committee and an announced candidate for his paryt's presidential nomination said he opposes what he called a state department policy of trying to "solve the financial difficulties of every government."

Against Long Range Program

Without mentioning the Marshall plan by name he said no such policy should be carried forward into a long-range recovery program for Europe.

Under the Marshall plan, 16 European nations would receive $16 000 000 000 to $20,000,000,000 of assistance from this country to encourage them in a program of self-help by mutual cooperation. It is expected to reach congress about Dec 8.

As an example of what he objects to Taft cited in a senate speech yesterday a recent advance of funds by this country to France which he said was used partly to pay French debts of $1 000-000 and $30 000,000 to Brazil and Belgium.

Taft declared the state department apparently has adopted a "balance of payments" policy under which it says to western European nations:

"Figure out everything you want to import and what you can export. We will criticize your figures to some extent and perhaps scale them down a little but we will advance you the difference."

Wants To Be Careful

Taft said "I believe we have to go on and on with assistance to Europe but I think it should be carefully scrutinized. We should determine the things which we think would help those countries to go to work, rather than simply to solve the financial difficulties of every government."

20 Small Boats Sunk, Blimp Torn Loose, in Florida Storm

By The Associated Press

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 29—A freakish post-season storm which sank 20 small boats and ripped a navy blimp from its mooring with winds as high as 80 miles an hour in the Florida keys yesterday, was located today about 150 miles southeast of Miami.

The banana boat Sylph en route from Cuba to Miami with a crew of 10 aboard reported she was sinking 51 miles southeast of Miami after springing a leak during the storm last night, but later advised that the hole had been found and was being repaired and coast guard assistance might not be needed.

Winds were subsiding along the southeast Florida coast and the Florida keys this morning, the weather bureau said, but are expected to remain strong with gusts up to 50 to 60 miles an hour between the southeast Florida coast and the western Bahamas today.

Northeast storm warnings remain displayed from West Palm Beach southward through the Florida keys, and small craft warnings northward on the east coast to Daytona Beach and on the west coast to Tarpon Springs.

Miami, which received a deluge of rain yesterday, still had frequent showers this morning, but the sun broke through the clouds frequently.

Key West suffered the heaviest in the storm yesterday as gusts up to 86 miles an hour were recorded there. Twenty small boats were sunk and a navy blimp torn from its mooring. Trees were uprooted and awnings and signs battered.

At the Boca Chica naval air station, where President Truman will land next week aboard his plane, the wind tore a navy blimp with four men aboard from its mooring, ripped open the gas bag and dashed it against the runway. Its four crew members escaped unhurt.

As in previous tropical storms which hit Miami and south Florida this fall, rain and its accompanying flood waters were the prime concern of the blow.

Some 1.21 inches of rain fell in the greater Miami area in the 12 hour period between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. causing the postponement of the scheduled Alabama-University of Miami football game and piling up water still standing in outlying sections from the October deluge.

French Premier Asks Power To End Strikes

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Nov 29—Premier Robert Schuman asked the national assembly today for power to crack down on agitators for strikes or sabotage "by speeches, writing or tracts."

He said he wanted this right for six months time as he pleaded for power to help him fight a strangling wave of Communist-inspired strikes throughout France.

The assembly's committee on civil and criminal law immediately approved the government bills, 26 to 13, and sent them to the assembly which is expected to consider them later in the day.

In demanding "complete revision of the laws on sabotage, he took cognizance of yesterday's reports that sabotage was on the increase and declared:

"If we have reached this point, the responsibility belongs to the Communists."

Speaking directly to the Communists in the assembly, the new premier, beginning his second week in office charged:

"I declare that your goal is to create excitement in the country. It is against this that the government must contend."

He said the trouble was being caused more and more by foreign elements. Protests roared from the Communist benches.

As Schuman spoke more than a third of the nation's 6 000 000 organized workers were on strike and government forces were ejecting strikers from rail centers and other strongholds they had seized.

Schuman also asked the assembly to reorganize part of the French security forces and to pass a new law giving added protection to non-strikers.

80,000 Troops Called

It was learned that the approximately 80 000 soldiers, half the class of 1946, called up yesterday would be under orders of the ministry of interior, which controls the police forces, and not of the ministry of armed forces, as is customary.

In Paris, police cleared all the capital's seven main railway terminals except the Lyon station, where strikers remained.

Some scattered sabotage was reported at La Villete Cambrai and Avesnese "runaway" locomotives roared down the tracks with throttles open, telescoping two freight cars in one case. At Nanterre and Vanves, overhead high tension cables were short circuited.

Premier Near Blows With Communist

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Nov. 29—Premier Robert Schuman charged down an aisle in the national assembly toward a Communist leader today but was intercepted.

Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist party, told Schuman:

"You wore the German uniform in 1914."

The premier was almost to the rostrum when one of his ministers stopped him.

Edouard Herriot, assembly president advised Duclos:

"You have no right to speak to Monsieur Schuman that way. He has suffered as much as anyone from the Germans."

Schuman comes from Alsace Lorraine, which was part of Germany in 1914. In World War II the Germans took him prisoner but he escaped and worked in the underground.

RED STRIKE IN ITALY ENDED

Communist Leaders Call Off Action But Threaten "Suitable Substitute."

By The United Press

MILAN, Nov 29—The partisans surrendered the federal building today after holding it for 16 hours and the Communists ordered an end to a general strike but promised a "suitable" substitute.

The occupation — the greatest threat to government authority since the overthrow of the Mussolini regime—ended 5 a. m. (11 p. m., Friday, EST) when Gian Carlo Pajetta, Communist central committeeman, walked into the courtyard and told 50 partisans to go home.

A freezing rain pounded on the flagstones and the partisans, many of whom had been standing out in it, cheered loudly. Then thousand partisans marched on the federal builing (prefecture) yesterday but only 500 remained through the night.

Pajetta told them that the "workers" were united in their fight against "the party of the United States," a probable reference to the Christian Democrats.

The Communists had called a general strike in Milan along with seizure of the federal building and radio station and had beaten up shopkeepers and restaurant owners who did not close their establishments. Pajetta told the partisans the strike was suspended, pending a decision on a "suitable" substitute.

Milan was filled with sharpshooting bersaglieri (troops) the government had ordered in to reinforce the police. Premier Alcide De Gasperi in Rome had ordered the military to "take control" if necessary but generals on the scene decided against it.

The Communists, who consider the partisans their shock forces, order the seizure and general strike because the government dismissed Ettore Troilo, the Milan prefect. He is an ex-partisan and leftist, although he is not believed to be an outright Communist.

COLUMBUS INCOME TAX ACT PASSED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—Residents of Ohio's state capital today had just 32 more days before income tax—city style.

City council last night passed unanimously a five-year payroll-income tax of one half of one per cent. Mayor James A. Rhodes signed it into law, effective Jan. 1.

City officials estimated the tax would bring in between $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 annually.

The tax law's expiration date is Dec. 31, 1952.

The levy's approval signaled an immediate campaign to bring it to a referendum vote, spearheaded by state CIO, the Columbus Chapter of the American Veterans Committee and a group of Democrats. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson also has indicated he will challenge the tax.

The tax ordinance provides no consideration for dependents, no graduated rate, and no deductions for charity contributions and medical expenses, but allows corporations to deduct charity expenditures as operating cost.

Revenue is intended to allocate funds to settle $1,387,000 in back pay suits against the city and $800,000 in river pollution suits; repair and maintenance of streets; the general fund, and to a capital improvements fund in case of an unforeseen surplus.

Not subject to the tax are federal and state benefits for servicemen and women or their dependents and beneficiaries, poor relief, old age pensions, disability benefits received from government sources and those from charitable, religious and educational organizations, labor unions, lodges and similar groups; dues, contributions and similar payments; receipts from casual sales and seasonal or casual entertainment, amusements and sports events and health and welfare activities conducted by bona fide charitable, religious and educational groups.

Also taxable are gross receipts of a non-profit organization after deducting costs and expenses including reserves for depreciation and bad debts, and patronage refunds paid in cash within 90 days after close of each calendar fiscal year.

Generall, the tax covers all income and net profits, affecting employes salary income and money derived from business enterprises including corporations.

By The Associated Press

LORAIN, O., Nov. 29—Officials of the National Tube Co. inspected their extensively damaged benzol plant today in an effort to learn the cause of a powerful explosion and fire in which 17 employes were injured, none seriously.

The blast rocked the plant shortly before noon yesterday and was forceful enough to hurl half-ton chunks of cast iron gas pipe as far as 400 feet.

Company officials made no immediate estimate of the damage, which Fire Chief Elmer Stough described as "too big for me" to reckon.

Louis Sattele, assistant superintendent of National Tube, a U.S. Steel Corp. subsidiary, said investigation of the explosion's cause would be started this morning.

CANTON, O., Nov. 29 — Union bus drivers struck for higher pay today against Canton City Lines, Inc., and picketed the company garage.

In secret ballot less than three hours before the first buses were to roll along this industrial city's snow-covered streets, members of Local 489 of the AFL International Teamsters union voted 125 to four in favor of the strike, Local Secretary Harold J. Bartchy reported.

The vote came after the union rejected unanimously a proposal by the company last night to increase a wage-raise offer from seven cents an hour to 10 cents. Originally the union sought 40 cents an hour more pay, but later reduced its demand to 33 cents.

The 118 drivers and 32 garage mechanics who struck had set their walkout for last week-end, but delayed it for five days at the request of Mayor Carl F. Klein.

G.O.P. WOULD LIMIT TRUMAN AUTHORITY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—Senate Republicans demanded today the Truman administration "get specific" about the anti-inflation powers it wants from congress.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the senate-house economic committee, told a reporter he is opposed to writing any blank check legislation setting up power, for example, to earmark scarce materials for essential uses.

But the Ohioan said he might be willing to have possibly 10 per cent of the steel production set aside for priority requirements, such as box cars.

Taft expressed the opinion that the administration would stretch any general authority to allocate to cover more ground than congress intended—and would do so "very promptly."

Senator Watkins (R-Utah), a member of the joint committee said it is time for the administration to "get specific" about plans to carry out President Truman's 10-point cost of living program.

"The government officials who have testified before our committee seem to have only a general idea of what they want and they have talked only in terms of board powers," Watkins remarked.

SHACK OF RECLUSE YIELDS NEW RICHES

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—Detectives seeking the slayer of 67-year-old Donato (Dan the Mooch) Mucci, wealthy railroad lamplighter who lived in destitution, questioned an unidentified Columbus man today.

Mucci died yesterday of a crushed skull dealt him hours before by what police theorized was a would-be robber.

The crippled lamplighter had a fortune of nearly $30,000.

Investigators found $500 in cash and bank deposit books totaling nearly $25,000 in an old coffee can in the man's littered shack. In a safety deposit box they found $4,000 in government bonds and a hoard of Italian lira worth at today's depreciated exchange value $31.

CALLS RELIEF PLAN BLOW TO FARMER

Smith Sees Danger in Threat To Seize Livestock.

Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion, in a statement issued in Washington yesterday, continued his attack on President Truman's foreign relief program by declaring it was a crippling blow to the American farmer.

His statement follows:

"In a radio address to the nation Oct. 14, 1946, the President shocked the nation, especially the farm community, by stating that his administration had seriously considered seizing the livestock on farms and ranges to cure the catastrophic meat shortage it caused with OPA and other totalitarian controls.

"Now the New Dealers want to seize not only the farmers' livestock, but the authority for which they are now asking, together with that which they already possess under the AAA and other socialistic legislation, would empower them to seize just about everything the farmers produce and, in effect, their farms to boot.

"They are asking for the power to control the price of everything the farmer buys, what and how much of anything he can buy.

"The additional authority they are now asking, together with that which they already possess, would empower the New Dealers to dictate to the farmers the kind and amount of things they could produce, the price at which they would have to sell their products, and even the use to which they could put their grains and other crops.

"In a word, the New Dealers seek to liquidate the farmers of this nation just as the Communists liquidated the farmers in Russia.

"They say this is absolutely necessary to put through the multi-billion dollar lend-lease program called the Marshall plan."

TWO MEN DIE FOR DICE GAME MURDER

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—Two former Georgia Sharecroppers, who turned to crime in the big city, died last night in Ohio's electric chair for a murder committed over a dice game.

Robert Britton, 25, and James Griffin Jr., 27, both Negroes, were convicted of slaying Harr L. Webb on June 21, 1946, in Cleveland. The state charged them with killing during a holdup, but the defendants claimed they only sought to recover their losses.

Britton walked into the death chamber at 8:03 p. m. and was declared dead by Dr. J. B. Eckstorm at 8:12 p. m. Griffin entered at 8:18 p. m. and was pronounced dead at 8:26 p. m.

The first victim was accompanied by Rev. K. E. Wall, prison chaplain. He recited the Lord's prayer and then asked Rev. Wall to repeat it. Britton remained calm to the end.

Griffin walked to his death with the Rev. V. E. Lucier, Catholic chaplain, and also recited the Lord's prayer. Tears welled into the condemned man's eyes as the mask was placed over his head.

Britton and Griffin also were accused, but not convicted, of the fatal shooting of Harley Kinnear, World War II veteran and Nichel Plate railroad detective. Police said the two men were halted in the railroad yards as they sought to recover a revolver used in the Webb slaying. Kinnear, it was said, became suspicious and was shot as he attempted to apprehend Britton and Griffin.

The pair fled to Arkansas where they were arrested and returned to Cleveland for trial.

Both men came to Cleveland from Georgia 18 months before the Webb slaying. Neither could read nor write. They worked in war plants and had no criminal record until the dice game incident.

They were condemned to die last March 25, but appealed to the Ohio supreme court, which rejected their case last Oct. 8. Gov. Thomas J. Herbert refused to intercede last Friday, final day of a 30-day stay he had granted earlier.

A third man involved in the Webb slaying, Floyd Dace, also was sentenced to die, but is awaiting appeal to the supreme court.

Rheumatic Fever Symptoms Which Aid Diagnosis

Childhood's worst enemy today is rheumatic fever. Through the damage it does to the heart, this dread disease annually leaves behind it thousands of children who must live out the rest of their lives in an invalid or semi-invalid state.

The earlier the disease is recognized and treated, the better the chance for preventing serious heart damage. Mothers of young children, particularly, should learn some of its more outstanding symptoms, so that if any of these appear a doctor can be consulted at once.

Unfortunately, rheumatic fever does not always proclaim itself for the serious disease it is. In some cases the signs that it gives are so mild that only those on the alert will suspect it.

The most frequent symptom of rheumatic fever is inflammation of the joints. There is pain in the joints, and usually a number of the joints are involved in rapid succession. In mild cases, there may be only pain and tenderness. In more severe cases, there are also redness and swelling. Even though no treatment for the disorder is given, the disturbance of one joint may be subsiding or clearing up as other joints become involved. Fever usually accompanies this symptom.

A helpful test for diagnosing rheumatic fever is the giving of drugs known as salicylates. One of the salicylates is aspirin. In rheumatic fever, the joint pains will usually disappear promptly when the salicylates are administered. In fact, the pain, in practically all instances, clears up within 24 hours. If, when salicylates are given, the pains in the joints do not disappear, it is probable that the cause of the disturbance in the joints is some condition other than rheumatic fever.

Another outstanding symptom of rheumatic fever is a disorder called chorea. In this condition, there are purposeless, jerky movements of the arms, legs, and other parts of the body. It seems to be generally accepted that chorea is due to the same cause as rheumatic fever. Hence, when chorea is present, a diagnosis of rheumatic fever can be made.

In rheumatic fever, little swellings called rheumatic nodules develop. These are small, firm, non-tender swellings which are found under the skin near the elbows, knees, wrists, ankles, scalp, and over the spine. These rheumatic nodules are not of any great help in diagnosing rheumatic fever, since by the time they appear other symptoms have already been present.

The most important feature of rheumatic fever is the damage to the heart which it produces. The damage to the heart causes rapid heartbeat and enlargement of the heart. Of course, the main effort in the treatment of rheumatic fever is directed to the prevention of heart damage insofar as that is possible, and to employ measures for protecting the heart against strain.

Other symptoms which may occur in rheumatic fever are pain in the abdomen, nosebleed, anemia, loss of weight, poor appetite, and fatigue. Since these symptoms may appear early in the condition, whenever they are present thorough study by a physician should be carried out, because an early diagnosis of rheumatic fever will often save a child the severe heart damage which makes this disease such a crippler.

Better for less louse killer

SIX (that's the name of the new Dr. Hess poultry louse killer) has some features that are very important to you.

SIX is superior to even the better grades of old-style roost paints for six reasons: 1. Single application effective. 2. Has longer life. 3. Gives residual action. 4. Spreads quickly. 5. Works with less irritation. 6. Stable at high temperatures.

SIX costs only about half as much as even the better grades of old-style roost paints. 500 bird size, $1.25.

SIX is used as a roost paint to kill lice. It comes in a handy spout-like can. It vaporizes while the birds are roosting and kills lice. SIX is also a very efficient mite killer when used as a spray.

Roving Reports

NEW YORK

IF the army has any skeletons [illegible] closet, the public now [illegible] them.

[illegible] Dwight Eisenhower says [illegible] recent order unveils all [illegible] historical records except [illegible] containing secrets essential [illegible] security, regardless of [illegible] the records may embarrass [illegible] brass.

[illegible] probably will be no tidal [illegible] ex-G.I.'s descending upon [illegible] Pentagon to dig out the dirt [illegible]—but historians in time [illegible] will uncover much that [illegible] interest the men that fought the battles of the second world war.

It is axiomatic in war that the closer you get to the front the less you knew about the whole picture. A newspaper reader in Omaha knew more about what was going on than an infantryman fighting house-by-house through Aachen.

BOYLE

The "dogfaces," back in civilian life still would like to have a lot of answers to questions that bothered them then and which the army records ought to be able to clear up now.

Those who fought in Tunisia, for example, are still puzzled over the mysterious disappearance of the African climate.

They waded ashore carrying in their back pockets a little blue book in which the war department assured them that Africa had a hot, dry climate. For six months it rained, snowed, froze, thawed, snowed and rained. If there was a dry place between Casablanca and Tunis it was the war's best held military secret.

THEN, WHEN THE victory was won and the last German sealed up in prisoner camps or swimming toward Italy, the sun suddenly came out — and there was the promised hot, dry African climate. But where had it been hibernating for half a year?

A second mystery the doughfoots would like solved is what happened to the warm sunshiny climate which another army handbook said positively—no fooling this time — they would find in Italy.

All they found from Salerno to Anzio and beyond were bitter winds, chilling frost, and mountains even wetter, colder and rockier than those of North Tunisia. By then the foot soldiers were so used to sloping forward from trudging uphill that they practically fell on their faces when they hit an occasional patch of level ground.

A THIRD WEATHER mystery is how did the French mud through which American troops fought in 1918 manage to get so much deeper in only 26 years.

Other puzzles the army's historical records may now help solve:

"Where did "Mademoiselle from Armentieres" get so many homely daughters?

How could there be anybody left in Brooklyn if all the people in Sicily who said they used to live in Brooklyn really did?

While the Germans were learning a way to get flavory butter from coal tar, why did the U. S. quartermaster corps concentrate on developing a unique vegetable stew that tasted like cold library paste and sawdust?

BUT TO THOUSANDS of veterans of the "Battle of the Bulge," who fought through their third straight winter without adequate warm clothing, the main question is:

"Why wasn't somebody in Washington assigned to inform the Army's supply branch that the seasons in Europe change on about the same schedule as they do in America?"

The Army historical records which explain that one perhaps also will give a really satisfactory answer as to why the Army ran out of gasoline and shells in 1944 as it reached the Siegfried line, thus delaying war's end through another winter.

The men who most deserve that explanation are under crosses.

Thanksgiving passed off successfully in New England . . . Several states gave thanks for the harvest and Boston was grateful for the gift of Mayor Curley.

Capital Capers

By Frederick Othman

WASHINGTON

ONE of America's busiest factories today is working double-shift with electrical machinery on hem facings to give last year's dresses the new look.

A lady lets out the bottom of her skirt, sews in a precision made, bias-cut facing of cotton sateen and she's got her dress lengthened by about two inches for 65 cents. Rayon: 10 cents extra.

These false hems are cascading out the shipping room door in Los Angeles. The management has begun a national advertising campaign and on the face of it, fellow husbands, I suppose we ought to be grateful. Sixty five cents each is a small enough sum to pay for dresses to keep our wives happy and their knees hidden. But wait:

OTHMAN

My special correspondent on New York's Seventh avenue, where the spring dresses now are coming off the cutting boards, reports that we haven't seen anything yet. These frocks with the vernal flowers printed on them are ankle length. They make today's long skirts look in comparison like a Clara Bow thigh-length special.

I do not know what the west coast plutocrat of hem facings will do. Maybe he'll switch over to production of dust ruffles. And with the ladies doing their work for 'em, where will the street sweepers be?

Where will I be? I am the poor, trusting individual who announced publicly a while back that I thought my bride looked fine in her new, new-look dress. That still goes. Now, says she, she must wear it frequently. She wants to get some use from it before she is forced to buy a new, new-new-look dress.

DRESS-MAKERS, THIS is going too far. It's the old double-cross, redoubled, and I don't like it. And another thing, gents—

What about bathing suits? What's the idea of giving them the cover-up look, too? With skirts on 'em, according to the winter resort fashions, and high collars? by next Summer I have no doubt that ladies on the beach will be wearing long black stockings, wrist-length sleeves, and sunbonnets. I don't like that, either.

This is going to drown a lot of females and waste untold hours of time. Masculine time, I mean, because of what the psychologists call the fascination of the mysterious. Ladies' legs become secret, so gentlemen loiter at street car platforms ogling ankles.

THERE'LL BE A RASH of peeping-tomism, according to my further research into the psychology of clothes, and any lady who lets her skirt slide up a quarter of the way to her knee will be inviting insults. That's straight from old Sigmund Freud, the man who made sex what it is today, and it isn't funny.

Then along about 1950 will come some brave female wearing a skirt in which she can walk. Like Amelia Bloomer, she'll be hauled to the station on charges of indecent exposure. Her long-skirted sisters will be incensed at this affront to their sex and they'll all demand short dresses.

The foxy designers will be waiting for 'em, because all of today's long skirts long since will have been chopped into dust cloths, pen wipers, and rag rugs. Short skirts will be in style and I ask you, husbands, who loses? We do.

So I solemnly swear upon my oath that I'll never write a kind word again about dressmakers. They've bitten once to often the hand that feeds 'em.

In Plain Words

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

HERE are answers to some questions about the government which may have stumped you.

The story will deal with the veto, what it is and what can be done about it.

When both houses of congress pass a measure it is sent to the President for him to sign into law, or let become law, or veto.

The word veto is from Latin and means "I forbid."

When a congressional measure reaches the President, he says:

MARLOW

1. Sign it. Then it is law.

2. If for some reason he doesn't want to appear to approve it by signing it, but still doesn't want to kill it, he can do this:

He can hold it for 10 days without taking action. At the end of the 10 days, Sundays excepted, it becomes law without his signature if congress is in session.

3. Veto it. He doesn't write "veto" on it. He merely sends it back to congress with a message giving his reason for refusing to sign it.

The measure is thus killed unless both houses of congdess repass it over the veto by a two-thirds vote.

Then it becomes law without having to go back to the President again.

But there's a kind of veto—called a pocket veto—which the President can use to kill a bill and congress can't override him on this.

THE POCKET VETO works like this:

Under the Constitution the President is allowed 10 days, Sundays excepted, in which to give his approval after receiving a measure passed by congress.

If congress adjourns within those 10 days — and if the President wants to kill the bill—he lets it go unsigned. That kills it. Why?

Because he doesn't have to send it back to congress with a veto. There's no congress there to receive the message or act on the veto.

(As noted above, this only works when congress adjourns within the 10 days after the President has received the measure.

(If congress was in session for those 10 days after the President received the measure and he did not sign it, it would become law.)

But can the President veto any measure sent him by congress? Can he even veto a declaration of war by both houses of congress?

The answer is yes to both questions.

BUT NOT MANY bills are vetoed by Presidents and very few of those vetoed are repassed by congress over the veto. Why?

Congress only needs a majority vote in each house to pass a measure it wants to become law. A majority vote is not too difficult to get.

But, as explained, to repass a vetoed measure both houses of congress must do it by a two-thirds vote, a much harder number to get.

Further, many congressmen who voted for a measure respect the President's reasons for vetoing a bill and then won't vote to repass it.

Get 1947 Power and Pep with a Brand-New Buick Fireball Engine

TO those whose spirits tingle at the thought of stepping away to the tune of today's flashing Fireball power:

To those who dream of touching toe to treadle and unleashing all the zip and go packed in a 1947 Buick straight-eight engine:

Here's a bright and happy idea that makes dreams come true now.

We'll put a sleek new factory-fresh engine — identical with the engines going in our 1947 cars — right in your present Buick. We'll lift out the old engine, lower this sleek new one in its place, hook it up, and there you are with a sweetheart ready for thousands and thousands more miles of thrilling performance and with a car worth much more than it was before. It's the next best thing to getting a new Buick.

How can we do this, when new cars are so hard to get? It's this way. Sheet steel and other parts are short. That holds up bodies and completed cars. But engines are coming along great guns.

So we have these 1947 honeys ready to put in any Buick built in the last 10 years. To do it takes less time than a major overhaul. It often costs less too. And convenient payments can be arranged if you like.

Pretty nice idea, isn't it? Why not look into it today? We'll be glad to go over it in detail with you.

Those Supplies for Russia

REPRESENTATIVE TABER, the house appropriations committee chairman, wants to know why we shipped $113,000,000 worth of petroleum, machinery and food to Russia between Jan. 1 and Sept. 30. The supplies have included 1,565 tractors, of which we still don't have enough, locomotives, freight cars and heavy machinery.

No doubt many others would like an explanation of why on one hand we oppose Russia with the Marshall plan and provide her with supplies on the other. We are supposed to be following a new "get tough" policy with Russia, but how can it be taken seriously when we send them supplies that Europe's western powers would be happy to receive?

Secretary Marshall in London receives a daily ration of vilification and abuse from the Russian spokesmen. He answers with temperate remarks to the effect that "They don't mean what they say." A language the Russians could understand much better would be a ban on shipments of supplies to them.

Perhaps the state department has a logical explanation for allowing shipments to Russia. Perhaps it can show that there is a difference between aiding Russia now and shipping scrap to Japan in 1939. It could be that the state department is proceeding on the assumption that we should give the soft answer and "hard" goods to Russia in the belief that she eventually will stop using the international conference table like a Union Square soap-box.

If that's the explanation of the state department's policy, the public, which foots the bills, deserves to be taken into its confidence.

Limbering Up An Elephant

REPORTS that Republican "mavericks" have been needling Senator Taft for opinions about the Truman anti-inflation program that were too conservative for them are something to cheer about.

The hasty—and wishful—conclusion that the Republicans are starting a civil war overlooks the fact that Taft himself has been a "maverick." His views on federal aid for housing and education are so unorthodox they have been called "pink."

The most important potentiality within the Republican party right now is its adjustment to changing conditions. The New Deal coalition, as always happens, is stuck with its inheritance of ideas from the depression era; it is a victim of the same political arthritis that made it impossible for the GOP elephant to do anything but stand pat in 1932.

If there are "mavericks" who believe the Republican party should propose a constructive alternative to the Truman program for checking inflation—if there are "mavericks" who believe the Republican party has nothing to gain by seeming to favor unchecked continuation of rising prices and shrinking dollars—they are merely reflecting the same opinion among millions of voters.

This is certain: That the Republican party must offer a better alternative to the Truman administration's sterile statism than the Coolidge administration's discredited policy of hands off, if it wants to unseat the harried men struggling to hold the New Deal coalition together for four more years.

Mannerheim and Finland

A NEWS dispatch from Helsinki brings the almost-forgotten name of Field Marshal Mannerheim into the news. Nothing had been heard of him since his retirement as Finland's president almost two years ago. He is reported seriously ill.

Mannerheim was a hero in the western world when he took the field with his small army against the Russian collossus in the winter of 1939-40. The Finns fought valiantly but finally lost, only to reenter the fight on the German side when Hitler invaded Russia. Then came an embarrassing era for Finland's many friends in America Eloquent tributes, such as Robert Sherwood's play, "There Shall Be No Night," lost their significance.

Overrun a second time by Russia, Finland in 1945 declared war against Germany. Today she rests uneasily under the Russian heel, not a puppet in the sense that Yugoslavia and Bulgaria are, but a captive state nevertheless.

As history places Finland's actions in perspective she regains much of her lost prestige because of men like Mannerheim. Finland will be remembered as the country which paid her war debts when due but fell in with bad companions beacuse she lived in a bad neighborhood. She is clearly a case of environmental determinism, as any socialist will attest.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Does Administration Want Low Prices?

THE current boom, stimulated by an inflationary tendency, is favored by the administration because it benefits them politically. Everybody is at work. Everybody has money in the pocket. Prices are high, but the people can pay for what they wont. There is grumbling but no real dissatisfaction. Any lowering of prices would develop fears that the depression, which the Russians and Henry Wallace have regarded as "inevitable," has actually arrived.

SOKOLSKY

Therefore, the administration keeps prices high and shouts against the inflation. They act one way and talk another. The President's ten-point program was a talking matter; not a single step has been taken to implement it, in spite of the fact that the President possesses ample powers to curb the inflation in many directions—certainly in reducing the amount of money in circulation.

Marriner Eccles, for instance, proposed that bank credits be limited, a step that would, if properly handled, lessen the inflation. As a matter of fact, sound bankers have for some time been conservative in granting credits, particularly consumers' credits, but they ought to increase loans for productive purposes as opposed to speculation. When a loan is made that adds nothing to the general welfare but merely gives an individual an opportunity to gamble in an inflationary market, it is not sound to assist him.

John Snyder, secretary of the treasury, who more closely represents the administration than does Marriner Eccles, opposed Eccles' proposals for limiting bank credits. When Eccles insisted upon limiting government expenditures, he hit the administration more fiercely than even Senators Taft or Byrd have, for he, being in the family, even as a leftover, knows what the canker of government spending is upon the body politic. This administration means to spend more and more between now and election day on the Al Smith formula, "Nobody shoots Santa Claus," which Harry Hopkins turned into a poltical gold mine.

Again in the matter of conserving food supplies, the administration talks one way and acts another. The Luckman dramatization is, of course, finished and never needed. Nothing was actually saved by it. Yet, there was something that both Luckman and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson could have done and did not do. A very bad practice exists in the baking industry which is unnecessary, wasteful and serves no purpose but grew up in the competition for retail outlets; that is, the overstocking of bread in groceries and the acceptance of returns by bakers. Those returns of old bread are ground up for feed, but a great waste is involved. The bakers would like to get away from the practice but dare not enter into an agreement lest the department of jusice institute ani-trust proceedings agains them.

Nothing Done About It

It certainly ought to be possible for the bakers, the department of agriculture, the department of justice, and the White House to work out a procedure for ending this wasteful practice at a time when grain is so sorely needed without the bakers taking the additional risk of an anti-trust suit. But the administration does nothing and the practice continues. Incidentally, the secretary of agriculture says that he does not know any way to limit the weight of hogs and cattle—so how does he expect, by government controls, to limit the consumption of grain?

The fact that the administration is not willing to take a single step to lower prices, if such a step would antagonize a suffiently large and vocal group, as for instance, the farmers, just as it has been unwilling to offend the labor leaders by supporting the extremely mild controls on the predatory padrone system of the labor supply.

In a word, the administration wants to keep the prices high to satisfy those who benefit from high prices to please consumers. And when they can always blame the Republicans in congress for not doing what the administration is, by the Constitution and the law, empowered to do. They want to keep the boom going by keeping prices high for political reasons, while they talk anti-inflation for economic reasons. They hope that this paradox will keep them in office. And it might.

She must not have seen him since he grew that moustache.

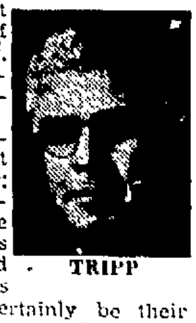
It's Time for the Club

By Frank Tripp

THERE are people that lie awake nights in mortal fear of destruction; who really believe the years of our land are numbered and a few; that of a sudden all may end forever.

They hear others have the secret of the atomic bomb. They bow in perpetual panicky prayer or they swing forth in reckless abandon to make their last days merry ones. You'd be surprised how many.



TRIPP

Their fear need not be of atomic bombs. It might better be fear of our own folly, delay and indefinite indecision.

Universal destruction is not the aim of war; it aims to destroy only the enemy. Nations do not contend against weapons which could certainly be their own undoing. Germ warfare would be suicidal. Even poison gases did not appear in the last war. The atomic bomb is definitely a suicidal weapon, once known to all the world.

We need never have part in another war in which millions of men surge and siege against each other to kill. America holds the means to insure itself against any weapon now known to man. America is safe—but silly.

No matter who may gain the atomic secret, America is as safe from destruction by it as it was before its invention. America can call Russia's bluff or that of any nation, and make good if needs be.

* * *

One of man's first instincts was to defend himself. The cave man never went forth without his club. Down through the ages it has been the man with the club who was safe.

It has always been the man with the biggest club. Primitive man relied little on conversation. His foes respected only his club. Times haven't changed so much.

We are talking ourselves into trouble and kid each other that we can be safe through talk. We cannot talk a bully into a high chair with an ice cream cone. We have done our part and tried. It's time to bring out the club. The sooner we do, the sooner the talk will end and the nation sleep sounder.

We have — rather bureaucracy has—developed a State Department that is a veritable army of itself; 25,000 people—think of it!

That many people with their noses in other nations' business, and all vying to be the fair-haired son at home. Great masses of stone corridors, mountains of records and reports, months upon months of investigations and research, hundreds of hours of arguments and gab. Billions spent, and a stratosphere of confusion results.

Perhaps the clumsy job impresses someone; but surely not the potential foe at whom it all is aimed.

So what? We've got to talk a language that the stubborn menace fears.

Let him have the bomb; let everybody have it, if they can dope it out. We have it now. We have the club. They know it; have seen it swing.

Let's make one more speech—then stop talking.

Let's tell 'em we've got atomic bombs and planes to carry them anywhere, scattered all over our nearly four million square miles.

That we've got scores, even hundreds, of equipped and manned posts waiting like fire departments to respond to alarms

That boys from any of them can drop in on any smart aleck who monkeys with the buzz saw, and paint up his town like Hiroshima.

* * *

May be we already have just that. If we haven't, we can get it; and we should—the very first thing we do.

We should get it; tell the world; then shut up and start making some automobiles, houses and pants for ourselves.

After that we won't need 25,000 thinker-upper of ways and means to save America.

Brother, she'll be saved!

Women on the Job

Women now hold about one-fourth of all factory production jobs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

This is the same proportion of women workers as in 1939, the bureau said, but pointed out there were more than 3,100,000 in factories in 1947 as compared with about 2,300,000 in 1939.

While the number of women employed was 38 per cent above the prewar year, the employment of men increased by nearly 40 per cent during the same period.

Is A Revolt Brewing?

By Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

THERE have been angry mutterings in the cloak rooms before, but there are now for the first time real signs of a serious rebellion among senate Republicans against Senator Robert A. Taft's leadership of the senate majority. If the rebellion materializes it will center, of course, around the price issue. For a number of senate Republicans are making no secret of the fact that they regard Senator Taft's root-and-branch opposition to the administration program for inflation control as bad politics if nothing worse.

ALSOP

The revolt is still in the talk stage, and it may never crystallize into action. Yet already close observers of the senate scene are beginning to tick off the names of those Republican senators who might be expected to defy the powerful Taft. Highest on the list are the names of two freshmen from New England, Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont and Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut. Already they have outspokenly criticized what they regard as Taft's "negative approach" to the price issue.

Baldwin and Flanders might well be joined by at least four other New Englanders, Massachusetts' Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and Leverett Saltonstall, Vermont's Senator George Aiken and New Hampshire's Senator Charles Tobey. Tobey has already summed up his own attitude towards the price issue in the phrase "damn the torpedoes and full speed ahead;" an approach which seems to indicate something less than full agreement with Senator Taft.

Possible Recruits

This hard core of New Englanders may well be reinforced by a scattering of recruits from elsewhere. The perpetual maverick, Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, although an outcast from the party councils, is expected to support a positive price program on the senate floor. Another probable recruit to the rebels is Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky.

Cooper has told intimates that he is convinced that the Republican record on prices was directly responsible for the recent Republican debacle in Kentucky. Senator Arthur V. Watkins of Utah has also amazed his colleagues by proposing government purchase of the entire wheat crop, a proposal which goes beyond anything contained in the Truman program, and which was greeted with horror in the Taft camp.

Other possible recruits for the Republican price rebellion include the able Senator Irving Ives of New York, and Senators William Knowland of California, Edward Thye of Minnesota, Alexander Smith of New Jersey, C. D. Buck of Delaware, and Zales Ecton of Montana. Ecton, a member of the price sub-committee for the west, received a vivid object lesson in the meaning of the price situation from his daughter and son-in-law, who were trying to live on the West Coast on $2,400 a year. Finally, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan might move quietly into the rebel camp. Vandenberg will never trespass openly on Taft's domestic policy bailiwick, but he too has undoubtedly heard from industrial Michigan echoes of the mounting anger about prices. And he is in a better position than most to judge what five dollar wheat might do to American foreign policy.

A Straw in the Wind

This listing is, of course, largely speculative. Yet if even a dozen or so senators openly defied the Taft leadership on the price issue, that would amount to the first really serious break in Republican senatorial ranks. The episode of last week's Republican conference illustrates why such a break is now a serious possibility.

At this conference the Flanders-Baldwin group urged that the price issue would certainly decide next year's election, that the Republicans must avoid merely whittling down on the Truman program, and that they must emerge instead with a positive Republican program. Taft seemed to agree. Yet immediately after the conference, he announced his intention to whittle away still another Truman item, that calling for controls on the feeding of high-priced cattle. Hard feelings resulted, and they have not been soothed by an editorial in "The Republican News" written by Republican Chairman Carroll Reece. The editorial is captioned "A Cop in Every Kitchen," and it consists of furious semantics about "totalitarian methods."

The kind of program the Republican moderates would like to substitute for this unrewarding rage was indicated in the report of the Flanders-Baldwin subcommittee of the joint committee on the economic report. This report suggests many of the measures proposed in the Truman message. It suggests further that meat be rationed immediately, and that price controls, rather than being angrily discarded in the Taft manner, be held in reserve as a reluctant last-ditch weapon in the fight on high prices. It is interesting that this program is much like that proposed by the middle-of-the-roaders among the President's advisers, who were finally over-ruled by the President when he decided to go the whole hog for rationing and price control.

The brewing Republican rebellion may yet be quashed. Yet it is at least heartening that a number of senate Republicans see more in the price problem than a chance to hurl Truman's silly remark about "police state methods" back in his face. And it is also heartening that a reasonable compromise on the issue between the administration and congress is at least not beyond the bounds of possibility.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Letters for Special Delivery

TO ALL CITIES WITH TRAFFIC PROBLE

Gents: I call your attention to a statement by a traffic student, saying that there is no chance of the American traffic problem showing much improvement as long as it is left to a Police Department and its slogan "Keep it moving." "Keep it moving" comprises the whole policy of the police. It is founded on the idea that a man at an auto wheel is endowed with extra rights and privileges, and it has been carried to a point where the autoists now believe it themselves.

* * *

The whistle has been substituted for the brain and the white glove has replaced horse sense and efficiency in traffic control all over America.

* * *

"Faster" has eclipsed "Let's have a little regard for the rules of the road" and "Get out of there!" has taken over for "What's the big hurry?" As the traffic expert says, "Things have reached a stage where the police don't believe in their own traffic signs."

* * *

The traffic ordinance and laws are no longer being enforced; they are being dismissed with flourishes, ruffles and a whistle serenade. The result is that every man with his foot near an accelerator has become convinced that he is endowed with inalienable rights, that a ten-second delay infringes on his constitutional privileges and that a witch on a broomstick represents the highest development of courtesy and sound transportation ideas.

* * *

Not until the guy behind the wheel is shucked of the idea he is perishable goods by community action will he realize that for short trips he might as well leave his car home. And until he starts leaving it home there will be no improvement in traffic congestion.

* * *

Fifty per cent of the coots congesting traffic are using a seven-passenger sedan to travel six blocks or so for a stick of bubblegum, a buttered roll or a pinball machine. They would walk if they didn't have the complete cooperation of the police in traveling the easy way.

* * *

The only enforcement of the auto laws in America is made out in the open space where there is little danger. In the heart of the city, where there is complete chaos blended with haynem and seasoned with slaughter, the word is "Keep it moving, let the pedestrian and the traffic rules fall where they may."

* * *

Seventy per cent of the auto drivers of America never heard of the elemental rules of the road, or passed a proper road test, and they are being encouraged to drive over their own grandmother rather than apply a brake.

Yours hopefully,

ELMER.

It warned us to discover through the hometown paper of our boyhood, the New Haven Register, that George Henry Durrie, painter of the original for this and many other Currier and Ives prints painted this from a scene in Bethany Conn.

Just Relax

By Truman Twill

Herewith, a few words of hard-earned advice to a young man on the occasion of his first date:

Do not try to do anything about the nervous feeling bothering you. It's normal. If you didn't have it, then there would be something wrong. And don't worry if your voice cracks while you are exchanging pleasantries with her papa and mama. They expect it.

Take it easy if she is not ready. You did not arrive too early. No matter what time you arrive she will keep you on the back of the stove until you are hottened up for her grand entrance. This is standard procedure.

Pay no more attention than necessary to what may seem an unnecessary amount of bright laughter and merry quips. Remember the girl is excited too, except that girls take pride in being able to behave as though they were the United States Marines and had everything under control. As soon as you're tired of it, tell her to snap out of it and be herself.

Be alert for the double-action trap, which starts with instructions about what time she has to be home. The girl will pretend not to take this seriously, but you take it seriously because if you don't you will get the blame. Keep your eye on the time and take her home when she's supposed to be taken home. This will open all doors to you.

Be broad-minded if she offers to pay for something. Chances are she can afford it. And whether she can afford it or not, you are in for years and years of picking up checks whether you can afford it or not. Never look a gift horse in the mouth, or a girl with ready cash.

Pay close attention to her. The reason will be easier to understand in years to come when it will be evident that the best way to make a date pay close attention to you is to pay close attention to her. It's a good habit. Form it early.

Tell her she looks nice. She should. She has tried hard. Here again, it's a bit early in the game, but you'll discover the wisdom in the old saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach and the way to a woman's heart is through her vanity. There are exceptions, but not many.

Make her think you are having the time of your life, even if you aren't She wants you to be happy, and if she thinks you really are happy that will put her at her ease. It's something to think about. Many first dates have drifted from one thing to another and reached golden wedding anniversaries

In other words, relax. There's nothing that can be done about it anyway. They've started to get you where they want you, and you might as well make the best of it.

The Powerful Gospel

A Sermonette

By REV. M. E. HOLLENSEN

Pastor of Emanuel Lutheran Church

• • •

"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth"

—Romans 1 16

• • •

TOMORROW begins a new year for the Christian church, and also ushers in the Advent season The word "Advent" means "The Coming" and refers to the coming of Jesus Christ to judge the living and the dead During the Advent period of the church year, a season which includes four Sundays before Christmas we are to prepare ourselves spiritually for the second and final coming of the Savior and, in so doing to have our hearts ready to celebrate anew the anniversary of His birth at Christmas time

We thank God that we have adequate means for the spiritual preparation which is necessary for all of us God has given us His Word His Gospel and we are assured that it is so powerful that it is able to bring us to heartfelt repentance because of our sins to generate faith in our hearts and to make us true believers in Christ Jesus our Savior St Paul writing by inspiration of the Holy Spirit, to the Christians at Rome said that the Gospel of Christ was the dynamite" of God If such be the case, then the Gospel must be a great power

When we look at this powerful Gospel we find that

I The gospel is tremendously powerful even though its power works invisibly

We can not see the Gospel as it works with power in the human heart For this reason many persons have no respect for God's Word They look upon it as being merely the words of man Christ was well aware of the fact that the Gospel power works invisibly But Jesus did something to remove any doubts whatsoever in our minds as to the efficacy and power of the Gospel to accomplish that for which it is intended After having preached to a multitude at the shore of Gennesaret one day, the Master turned to Peter and told him to launch out into the deep and let down his nets for a draught. Peter was reluctant, but at the command of Christ he did it. The catch of fishes was so great that the nets tore and brake What was the purpose of this miracle" Jesus took the power of the Word, which He had been preaching and using, and made this self-same power visible for the multitude, by performing a miracle which all could behold Jesus proved that the power of the Word of God even though it is invisible is no less than the tremendous power of God Himself

We call the power of the Gospel the power of grace, and the power of God in the physical realm the power of omnipotence Essentially, this power is one and the same, the very power of God himself Even though we can not see the Gospel power working in the hearts of men we have every assurance based on the testimony of Christ's miracles that the Gospel is a tremendous power

II The gospel is tremendously powerful, able to save all who believe

There has never been a man born of woman who has been beyond the power of the Gospel to save God cares not what a man has been, whether a man has lived his life in his own way, guiding himself wholly by the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the pride of life, or not The Gospel is such a magnificent power that it can save him

The Gospel can bring all men to forgiveness of sins, life and salvation, because Christ is the One who has given the Gospel its power Take Christ out of the Gospel, and it is powerless Put Him into the Gospel—and Christ is the Gospel itself — and you have the most glorious power on earth, able to bring lost and condemned sinners into the kingdom of God Christ atoned for the sins of the world He cancelled the guilt of the human race, and bore the eternal punishment for the whole world Christ opened up the way of heaven for sinners, and His Gospel is that power which brings His blessings to all men

Let us then, in this Advent season, turn to Christ as our personal Savior Let us believe that His righteousness takes away the eternal guilt and the everlasting punishment for our sins Let us know that faith in Jesus saves us unto eternal life And when the assurance of salvation is ours in Christ, the Advent season has prepared us well for the truly Christ-filled Christmas

AMEN

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

FROM beneath my lowered eyelashes, I shot a searching glance at Olina, exiled princess of Transvania, as she pleaded for haste in letting her see Mary Such a request was so unlike the usually poised girl, that I was not surprised to see distinct traces of nervousness in her face and eyes But I was sure that my voice betrayed no sign of my knowledge

Of course," I told her, "You may go directly to Mary. Come with me"

I walked beside her to the door, but as I put my hand on the door knob, her fingers covered mine with a convulsive grip

"Aunt Madge," she faltered

"Yes Olina" I infused my voice with all the encouragement I could muster

"I—I—can't see her alone It's perfectly absurd, I know, but I just can't Will you go in with me, please, and stay while I talk to her?"

I thought swiftly of Faith, and of the danger that she might come hunting me, and learn something of this interview.

"Of course I'll go in with you" I said, "but there is something of this interview

"Of course I'll go in with you" I said, but there is something I must do first Sit down, please I won't be longer than two minutes"

I put her into an easy chair, and hurried out of the room, and over to Dicky's where I found him lying on the couch, with Faith nestled close to him, while he told her a story, which, judging by the rapt expression on her face, must have been an exciting one He shot a keen look at me as I came in, and I knew he had caught my signal to agree, because of an emergency, to anything I should ask of him.

"What's eating you, darling?" he drawled as he rose. "House on fire, or anything?"

Faith giggled, as she always does, at her father's banter, and I smiled at both of them as I answered his question.

"Nothing so drastic," I said, "but Katharine went over to her own suite, and I am afraid she may have a headache, or feel ill. I am very busy at the moment, and I thought it would be nice if Faith went over and stayed in the apartment with her. Faith is a spendid nurse, you know."

"Yes, I know," Dicky said gravely, "and I think it is an excellent idea."

"But I haven't my nurse's costume here," Faith wailed.

"Aunt Katharine probably will fix you up one," I told her. "But you must hurry. I don't want her to be all alone when she has a headache."

He turned to Faith and lifted her to her feet. Then he drew her up to an erect position beside him

"Salute the General!" he intoned, and, with the gravest of faces, she put her hand up in imitation of his. When he put his hand down again, he put a quick question to me

"Any orders for me?" he asked

"Simply to return here, and wait in your own room for possible calls" I said, and he saluted again

"Please go out this door" I said indicating one that opened directly upon the corridor, "and tell Katharine, that I will call her after a while to see if her headache is better. If it is, and she wishes she may then bring Faith back here again"

"I take it not before," he said gravely

"You are correct," I said, using the same tone

'Give another salute to the General' he told his small daughter with twinkling eyes, and we all three saluted gravely Then when I had closed the door after them, I went back to Olina in the living room with the assurance that there would be no unheralded listeners to the coming interview

I found her sitting on the edge of her chair, but her training held, and she put no question to me

But I answered her unspoken one

"There will be no chance of Faith's listening in,' I told her "Her father has taken her over to Aunt Katharine's suite He will return to his own room at the extreme end of the apartment, and will not come in here So, if Mary comes in here to us, anything we may say will not be overheard. I think we shall all be more comfortable in here Shall I call her now?"

"Please!" she said softly. But, if she had shouted "Hurry!" she could not have made her meaning more pointed I went into the bedroom, closing the door behind me, and Mary looked up, patently puzzled.

'Where's 'Lina?" she asked in muted tones. "Or are you doubling for a herald with a trumpet to announce the royal entrance?"

POSTMASTER URGES EARLY YULE MAILING

Dec. 10 and 15 Set as Dates To Assure Delivery.

Marionites were urged today by Homer D. Cole, postmaster, to plan their Christmas shopping schedules now to permit early mailing of greeting cards and gift packages.

To assure delivery before Christmas day, Mr. Cole said that out-of-state mailings should be made before Dec. 10 and greeting cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than Dec. 15. Residents were urged to purchase the extra stamps now which will be needed during the holiday season, thus relieving some of the crowded conditions later at the post office windows.

Rules to be observed which will help the postal clerks include the need for writing a complete and accurate address on packages and cards and putting the zone numbers on where it will speed delivery. Parcel post packages must be stoutly wrapped and must not exceed 70 pounds in weight nor measure more than 100 inches in length and girth combined. Christmas cards can be handled easier if they are tied in bundles with all envelopes facing the same way and the stamps placed in the same corner. Mr. Cole also pointed out that progressive mailings over a period of several days will greatly alleviate the work at the postoffice.

Protection for Homes Closed During Winter

ated that several hun- sand people close their ear y winter, and de- the milder climate of the states In many cases s left un-occupied for ee months. Quite often, returns to find consid- mage done to the in- either from trespassers, ents or from the weather ile most of the damage avoided if the house were prepared before the own-st step to take in closing is to lock all the doors except one on the inside, and leave the keys in the locks. This prevents the use of pass-keys or the picking of the lock. The last door to be locked, should also be fitted with a padlock of the kind which folds and covers the screws which fasten it to the door and the door-frame

The second step in closing a house properly, is to fit all the first-floor windows with battens. A batten is a plain shield made of rough boards or heavy plywood, and made to set into the window frame in the same manner as a screen or a storm-sash. They should be fastened on the inside with heavy hooks and eyebolts. Battens present a real problem to the would-be house-breaker. Chimney-tops should be covered with a piece of screening weighted down with a brick, so that squirrels cannot get into the house through the flues

The main water supply valve should be closed off, and all plumbing fixtures drained. The traps should be filled with oil. The heating plant should be drained, and radiator valves left open.

The main switch controlling the electrical system should be pulled, and the gas supply turned off. In short, everything possible should be done to secure the house against outside influneces of every kind; and to do so is only a question of a few hours time.

The shades in the second story windows should be left up to that the house will get the benefit of any clear sunny days, and not drawn down tight, because condensation and dampness are invited when there is complete gloom and darkness in the interior

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Finish for Insulating Board

Q. I would like to paint our old-type rough insulation board walls. Would a resin-base, water emulsion paint be suitable or is an oil paint better? Will the nail heads show through?

A. You can paint the board with either material that you mentioned after preliminary preparations. First drive the nailheads slightly below the surface, using a nail-set. Then fill the shallow spots with "spackle" or with plaster of Paris mixed with paint to the consistency of a paste. When this has dried, smooth with sandpaper. You will need to apply a thin shellac or varnish sizing before painting the walls. Follow directions for applying whichever type of paint you select.

Floor Boards Not Level

Q. What can be done for hardwood floors that are not level, but are "rounding up" in some places? It's a large two-story house with a basement under most of it. The basement was dug after the house had been built a number of years

A. If the "rounding-up" is not too bad, a floor contractor could plane down the boards. Very badly warped boards should be replaced. It would be well to extend the basement under the entire building. A dirt floor holds moisture and causes trouble of various kinds

Practical Builder, Chicago publication, presents as a home of the month, one that the designers regard as important in these days of rising costs because the design and lines are simple, straightforward and compact. The plumbing is in one wall, and cross ventilation is provided in all rooms. The plan can be varied to a story and a half by moving the linen closet into the bathroom and installing a stair to the second floor, which would give space for a den, large bedroom and additional bath, if desired

The living room with dining room "L" is well designed for furniture placing and will accommodate full sized dining room table and chairs in the alcove. Corner cabinets provide space for linen and dishes. The framing is simple and economical. Outside walls are a buff or white brick and the trim is white, with shutters of blue-gray

The kitchen arrangement is simple. The space beneath the corner cabinet which is usually wasted is utilized for the sink location with a window adjacent. Cabinets on either side are easily reached, as are the refrigerator and range. Breakfast space is ample, pleasantly situated under the window

Although this is a minimum house, providing the greatest amount of living space for the smallest amount of cost, its design avoids the rubber-stamp monotony of run-of-the-mine low cost housing, Practical Builder reports

NEW PALESTINE PLAN PROPOSED

Situation Complicated by Surprise Move Made by Colombia.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—The bitter fight over the "Soviet-American" plan to partition Palestine was split wide open today as a result of Colombia's surprise move of yesterday to defer final United Nations action until next spring.

As the United Nations assembly was called back into session after a 24-hour recess, Colombian delegate Dr. Alfonso Lopez was reported to have lined up strong support, including the Arab-led anti-partitionists, for his plan of deferment.

The Arab countries met secretly last night and were slated to meet again before the assembly convened this afternoon. One informed source said the Arabs had decided not to take "too stiff" an attitude in the problem but that they had not yet decided whether to offer a proposal on their own account.

The Colombian proposal for delay was laid before the assembly late yesterday at Flushing Meadow Park when most delegates thought they were finally at the point of voting on the partition plan. Assembly President Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil already had predicted semi-privately that partition would be approved.

Action on both the Colombian proposal and the partition plan was then sidetracked when the assembly approved a surprise French motion for a 24-hour recess so a final effort at conciliation could be made between Arab anti-partitionists and Zionists favoring a pattern for the Holy Land that would establish Jewish and Arab nations.

As the delegates assembled for this afternoon's session, this was the situation:

1. The Arab countries, in a huddle after yesterday's meeting, had agreed to support the Colombian proposal.

2. Informed quarters reported Iran and Afghanistan, two of the anti-partitionist countries supporting the Arab position, had asked the Arab country delegations to turn to a federalized government for Palestine as a possible compromise. This plan was recommended last summer by an Indian-Yugoslav-Iranian minority on the 11-member United Nations special committee on Palestine (UNSCOP) but was dropped without a test.

3. Some countries which had reluctantly committed themselves to support the partition plan were reported to be ready to support the Colombian proposal as a possible "out."

2 ESCAPE INJURY

The driver, Miss O'Donnell, sustained minor cuts on her forehead and legs, Mr. O'Donnell was uninjured but lost his glasses.

EXPLOSIVE IDEA. Widespread discussion has followed the suggestion of Dr. Leo Szilard, A-bomb pioneer, that an exchange of Russian and American opinions be broadcast by Premier Josef Stalin and President Truman. Dr. Szilard, biophysics professor at the University of Chicago, provided the nuclear information which led to the making of atomic bombs. When U. S. source refused to let him send his radio-talk idea to Stalin, Szilard printed it as an "open letter" in the monthly "Bulletin of Atomic Scientists."

Booth Festival Raises $4,600 for Home, Hospital

Methodist churches of Marion contributed more than $1,000 in cash and supplies of the total $4,600 raised for Methodist institutions by the eastern half of the Lima district of the denomination, according to a report from the annual Youth Fellowship booth festival at Forest Friday. Sharing this amount will be the Methodist children's home at Worthington and Flower hospital in Toledo. Value of donations from Epworth church here was $425.85, Wesley church, $358, and Prospect Street church, $230. Eleven persons attended from Wesley church, and six from Prospect Street. A delegation from Epworth church was unable to attend because of lack of transportation. Total attendance was approximately 200 from 23 churches. Booths erected by the various youth groups represented were judged for message, originality and beauty, with New Bloomington, LaRue and Green Camp winning first and second places in various classifications. A program, banquet and recreation were activities of the event.

The newsreel among the added attractions will be of the Royal wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

"Unconquered," the technicolor production which stars Gary Cooper and Paulette Goddard and is a filmization of Neil H. Swanson's novel of frontier America, will open Wednesday for an extended run. Heading the outstanding supporting cast are Howard Da Silva, Boris Karloff, Cecil Kellaway and Ward Bond.

Telling of American heroism in the days before the Revolution, "Unconquered" deals with the events and people involved in the terrible "Pontiac Conspiracy" in which several Indian nations banded together in a merciless campaign to drive the advancing colonists back into the sea.

The story takes place in 1763 in the vast wilderness region of the Alleghenies, the hub of which was brave little Fort Pitt, now the great city of Pittsburgh. Gary Cooper appears as a Virginia militiaman and patriot who falls in love with Miss Goddard, an English girl unjustly sentenced to 14 years of slavery in America, to be bonded to the person who buys her at public auction.

Lon McAllister and Peggy Ann Garner are seen in the starring roles, with Edmund Gwenn, Reginals Owen and Charles Irwin heading the supporting cast.

A thrilling tale of adventure and of young love in the Highlands of Scotland, "Thunder in the Valley" is a story of the courage of simple folk, and of the romance between Maggie and David, both children of Shepherds. Lon McAllister has the role of a sensitive young shepherd boy, with Edmund Gwenn cast as his rough and hard-bitten father.

Fenella is in love with a gay, penniless musician, but has a quarrel with him and leaves, Gemma and the musician's brother, Sebastian, set out to catch up with Fenella and untangle the misunderstanding. Later, the big night arrives in London for Sebastian's ballet to be performed, troubles arise but are soon cleared up. As the curtain goes up, Sebastian searches for Gemma in the big theater.

FAMED FRENCH GENERAL AND NINE OTHERS KILLED

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Nov. 29 — French authorities said today nine French army and air force personnel were killed with Gen. Leclerc, French World War II hero, when their plane crashed in a sand-storm near Colombechar in the Sahara desert.

Leclerc, who died on his 45th birthday, first gained fame during the recent war when he led a free French force on a 2,000-mile march from Fort Lemay in the Lake Chad region of French equitorial Africa to Tripoli and made contact on Jan. 23, 1943, with Field Marshal Lord Montgomery's British Eighth army.

In 1944, Leclerc went into action alongside American troops in Normandy, and led the victorious march into Paris, where he accepted the surrender of the German commander, Gen. Deitrich von Choltitz.

The general was a member of an aristocratic French family. His real name was Count Philippe de Hauteclocque. During the war he assumed the name Leclerc to shield his wife and six children in German-occupied France from reprisals.

2 HORSEMEN RULED OFF AMERICAN TURF

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29—Two Maryland horsemen have been ruled off the American turf for cruelty to the race horse Saguaro, who ran to his death eight days ago.

The Maryland Racing Commission yesterday revoked the licenses of trainer Maurice (Moose) Peters and horseman Frank Buehler and ruled them off Maryland tracks for life. As a jockey, Peters rode Dauber to victory in the 1938 Preakness.

Under American Jockey club rules, this action means the two will be unable to operate at tracks anywhere in the country.

Saguaro, a gelding, raced to his death Nov. 21 in a workout at the Maurel race track.

Hit in the rump with a charge of rock salt from a shotgun, the horse bolted from the starting gate, crashed into the outside guard rail and broke his right foreleg. He was destroyed by Laurels guards.

Buehler, a licensed horse owner from St. Leonard, Md., said he fired the shot accidentally, while helping Peters to school the horse to make a fast break. Buehler testified he intended to frighten the riderless horse into a fast start by firing in the air but "the gun went off" when Saguaro "backlashed" in the gate.

Army-Navy Game Overshadows Today's Football Slate

Cadets Given Slight Edge Over Middies in 48th Annual Service Classic.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—The one game that draws its fans from every state in the nation—Army vs. Navy—completely overshadows a handful of other college football contests today, although there are a number which are traditionally important to their respective followers.

The usual sellout crowd of 102,000 was assured for Philadelphia's municipal stadium months before the service elevens took the field for their 48th annual battle, since seasonal performances have no apparent effect on this game's "gate."

One of the game's traditions will be broken by President Truman. Back in 1901 at Franklin field Theodore Roosevelt started the practice of the President changing sides at halftime. It's been that way ever since.

But President Truman will remain throughout the game on the side of the Army, the host team. Next year he'll be the guest of the Navy.

The Cadets, having won four lost two and tied two, were slight favorites, both on their overall record and their slightly better showing against three common rivals, Columbia, Penn and Notre Dame. Navy has one victory and one tie in eight starts.

Georgia vs. Georgia Tech

Elsewhere on this final big Saturday of the 1947 season, the biggest games on the schedule probably are Georgia vs. Georgia Tech, Mississippi vs. Mississippi State, Texas Christian vs. Southern Methodist and Holy Cross vs. Boston college.

The Southeastern conference championship is involved in the first two contests. Mississippi, the leader, has to win this one to take the title. should Charley Conerly and his teammates falter, Georgia Tech could go to the top by beating Georgia, or Mississippi State could make it by the default of both leaders.

Georgia Tech has an added incentive to cop the title, having been selected only yesterday to oppose Kansas in Miami's Orange Bowl. Mississippi has accepted a bid to the Delta Bowl, new post-season fixture at Memphis, with Texas Christian as the opponent. Mississippi State and Georgia are under consideration by sponsors of the Alamo Bowl at San Antonio, Tex.

Southern Methodist, already elected to play Penn State in the Cotton Bowl, likewise aims to close out its regulation season by laying claim to the Southwest conference title with a victory over T.C.U.'s Horned Frogs. Baylor meets Rice in another old southwest rivalry.

In the east, Boston college and Holy Cross meet in one of those anything-can-happen games, with B. C. likely to get one of the minor bowl bids by polishing off its ancient rival. Others in the traditional category are West Virginia at Pittsburgh and Fordham and N.Y.U. at New York.

The border conference title will be decided in the meeting of Hardin-Simmons and Texas Tech, both unbeaten in league play.

Other season-end fixtures in the south pit Virginia vs. North Carolina, Vanderbilt vs. Tennessee, Maryland vs. North Carolina State and Kansas State vs. Florida. The Alabama-Miami game, postponed from last night because of stormy weather, will be played in the Orange Bowl at Miami tonight. Kansas plays Arizona in a night game at Tucson.

Oregon State travels to Lincoln to face Nebraska, while Michigan State made the long haul to Honolulu to play Hawaii.

HAZEN, MAAG LEAVE FOR MIAMI TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dexter Hazen and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maag leave today for Miami, Fla. and the National Association of Professional Baseball league's convention.

Hazen is president of the Marion Cubs and Maag is on the board of directors.

Hazen said that the Cubs would probably renew their working agreement with the Chicago Cubs and that in all probability Jack Sheehan, farm director of the Cub system, would name a manager for the Marion Cubs during the Dec. 3-6 meeting of minor league baseball men. The Marion party will be back a week from Sunday.

Eleven more players have signed with the Cubs, Hazen said, and would report with Gerald Peters, George Hansen, Dale Schnepf and Raymond Peet, for try-outs this spring.

They are William Bolduc, Ralph Goedde, William Toulinson, Joseph Grimm, George Salyers, John Graney, Joseph Ferraro, Frederick Winsig, Nick Alivojvodic, Bill Bohlander, and William Crego.

Bolduc started with the Cubs last year, but went back home to Cambridge, Mass. in May. He's a right handed third baseman.

Goedde signed with the Cubs last spring, but failed to report for a tryout since he was busy with his farm. He's a right handed pitcher from Columbus Grove.

Toulinson hails from Watertown Mass., and was ineligible to pitch for the Cubs last year although he had signed with them. He's right handed.

Salyers, from Waynesburg, Ky., was another ineligible Cub last season. He's a third baseman.

Graney is a southpaw pitcher. Ferraro, a right handed pitcher, and Winsig a first baseman. Ferraro and Winsig come from Racine, Wis.

Alivojvodic is a right handed pitcher from Chicago, Ill., Bohlander an infielder from Philipsburg, O., and Crego an outfielder from Gary, Ind.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 — In 22 East-West football games, played annually since Dec. 26, 1925, for the benefit of the Shrine hospital for crippled children in San Francisco, there never has been a dull contest ... That's the word brought east by Managing Director Bill Coffman, who is here to see the Army-Navy game and to confer with the eastern coaches on this year's selection ... It's not hard to understand ... First, Bill explains, they select the best players eligible and have built up such cordial relations with the colleges that there are few refusals. The All-Star teams have no reputations to protect, so there's no point in playing conservative football .. Then, as part of the preparations, the boys are taken on a visit to the hospital soon after they reach San Francisco ... When the athletes leave, after listening to the yells and perhaps holding some helpless kid in their arms, they're likely to go with tears dripping from the corners of their eyes and with determination to put on a great show for the 62,000 customers who contribute over $100,000 annually (the entire profits of the game) to the hospital.

LOS ANGELES BETTORS favor Joe Louis over Jersey Joe Walcott by anywhere from 8-1 to 14-8. Wonder is that's a reflection of Louis' statement that he intends to make his home in southern California? ... Ribs Baysinger, Syracuse coach, is very proud of his son, Raves, Jr., the Navy quarterback, because he has been a student on defenses ever since he was a kid ... "Bays" probably will learn a little more today.

5 MARION COACHES ATTEND O.S.U. CLINIC

St. Mary cage mentor Gene Fetter and Harding coaches Kenny Somerlot, George Whitehead, Pete Howison, and Darl Gatchell left today for the Ohio Athletic association's annual basketball clinic at Ohio State university.

Tippy Dye, Buckeye basketball coach, heads the clinic and his team will wind up the day's instruction and discussion with an intra-squad game tonight.

Topics on the agenda today include standardation of backboards, tournament play, selection of officials, and explanation of new basketball rules.

Only minor changes occurred in the cage rules this year, and only two of them will have much bearing on game play, said Kenny Somerlot, head Harding coach.

One is the rule allowing unlimited substitution throughout the game, including overtime. Previously there had been a limit after the three-minute time-out before the close of the game and during overtimes.

The second change has to do with clocking the game and hinges on a change in definition of a dead ball. From now on a ball put into play from out-of-bounds remains dead until it touches a player and the clock doesn't start until the ball ceases to be dead.

Anoher new rule as explained by Irish Coach Gene Fetter is the automatic time-out given after five minutes of the second and fourth periods if there have been no time outs previously.

There is a new change in calling fouls, said Fetter. Officials can't charge personal fouls when the ball is dead and will have to call them technical fouls. As an example, Fetter said that if the ball went out-of-bounds and then one player fouled another, the foul would be called technical and would not be chalked up to the player's quota of five.

MIAMI RECEPTIVE TO SUN BOWL BID

By The Associated Press

OXFORD, O., Nov 29—Miami university's football Redskins, unbeaten this season for the first time in the school's history, will be "receptive" to an invitation to play in the Sun Bowl game at El Paso, Tex., New Year's day, says Merlin A. Ditmer, athletic director.

In fact, they're so interested in the possibility that two assistants of Head Coach Sid Gillman were reported in Lubbock, Tex., today scouting the border conference title game between Texas Tech and Hardin-Simmons—to the winner of which also goes the role of Sun Bowl host team.

Dee Belding, chairman of the Sun Bowl organization's team selected committee, announced in El Paso last night that a "feeler" had been airmailed to university officials here asking what the school's attitude would be if a bid should be extended.

"I feel sure the university would be receptive to the right kind of bowl bid," Ditmer responded in behalf of Miami.

When they drubbed Cincinnati, defending Sun Bowl champs, by a convincing 37-7 margin Thanksgiving day, the Redskins wound up their schedule with a record of eight wins and a 6-6 tie with the Queen City's other college team, Xavier.

3 Champ Games Feature Sunday's Pro Grid Card

By International News Service

Three crucial games feature tomorrow's professional football schedule.

In the National football league, first place in both divisions will be at stake. Pittsburgh's Steelers, who hold first place in the Eastern section, will defend it in Philadelphia against the Eagles, their closest rivals.

The Western division, the Chicago Cardinals, by beating the New York Giants, can tie the idle Chicago Bears for first place.

In the rival All-America conference, the Buffalo Bills can throw the Eastern division race into a tie by defeating the leading Yankees at New York. If the Yankees win, they will clinch the Eastern title.

On another A.A.C. game, Baltimore entertains the Chicago Rockets. N.F.L. contests between Washington and Boston, and between Green Bay and the Los Angeles Rams, complete the card.

FOREIGN TRADE TREND AFFECTS OHIO MOST

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—The state department said today Ohio is more susceptible than other states to fluctuations in foreign trade in a review of foreign trade agreements and their effect on the Buckeye state economy.

The 28-page brochure, entitled "Ohio and Foreign Trade" which was made public today, concluded that in general American imports must be increased in order to increase exports "and the only way this can be done on any permanent basis is to reduce all tariffs and trade barriers."

Publication of the review followed recent announcement of new trade pacts concluded by the United States and more than a score of other nations at Geneva.

The new trade agreements call for a general lowering of American tariffs on thousands of imported items. Other countries agreed to reciprocal lowering of their tariffs.

The state department study said a study of Ohio exports before and after passage of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930 "clearly indicated" that Ohio is more affected than other states by ups and downs of foreign commerce.

The Hawley-Smoot act boosted American tariffs considerably.

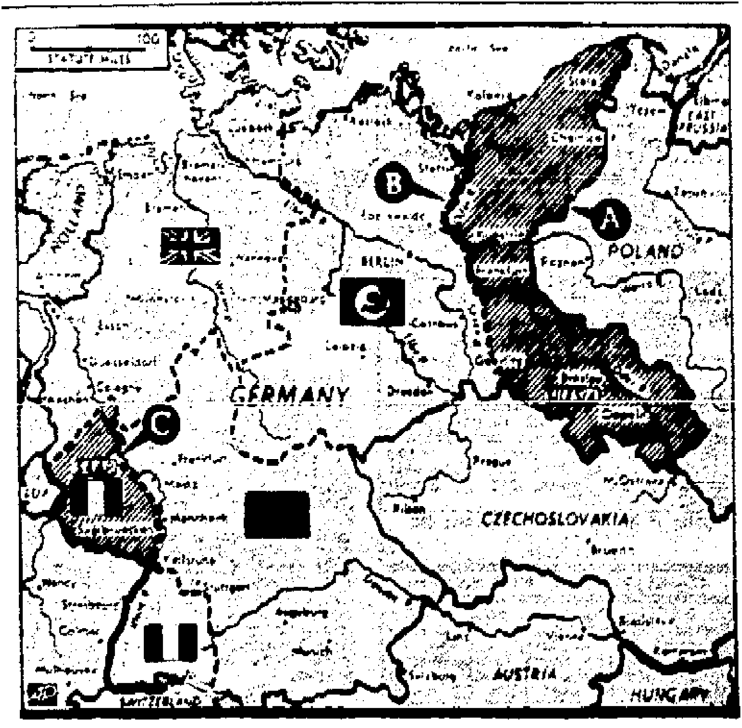
BOY, 9, CAUGHT IN ACT OF STEALING BICYCLE

A nine-year-old boy was caught by city police stealing a bicycle yesterday and admitted taking several others. He was arrested in the Woodlawn addition off Lee street, police said.

Several stolen bicycles have been found abandoned in that section of Marion during the past few weeks. Apparently the boy took them to ride home and then left them.

The boy was taken to the detention home. He will appear in juvenile court Monday at 3 p. m.



DISPUTED AREAS IN EUROPE. Map locates areas in dispute in London as foreign ministers of U.S., Great Britain, Russia, and France try to map boundaries for Germany. French sources said Foreign Minister Bidault probably would support Russian demands that Poland be given the area (between lines A and B) awarded to it temporarily at Potsdam conference. Britain and U. S. have insisted that a commission be named to determine final boundaries. U. S. Secretary of State Marshall hinted that U. S. was determined to have Silesia, now occupied by Poland, placed at service of Europe. Marshall said the U. S. approved French desire to incorporate the Saar valley (C) within French economy.
